A FAMILY PERSPECTIVE

Transfiguration is a common occurrence in families. When we commit to another, such as a spouse in marriage or a child in parenting, we are not committing to them only as they are today, but to the person they are becoming.

A NOTE FROM NICK HEISE When God calls and His Spirit moves within we are faced with a choice, to listen and go, or to ignore and stay. I've been blessed with my 'yes' to that calling that moved me to St. Mary's. Having met so many beautiful people and getting to serve both physically and spiritually with many of you has brought great joy and courage to my heart and the heart of this community. The same God and Spirit that called me here in August (2019) has called me back to my native place where my wife (Sara) and child (soon to be born) still reside. When my heart aches from thoughts of leaving the relationships made (with the young and wiser alike) I'm reminded of the Apostles of the Early Church; they established churches and walked with their brothers and sisters, for years, catechizing, praying, eating, and worshipping together. At the end of the day, however, God called and onward the Apostles went. Though I have not built any churches, I believe God used me to strengthen a few, and so the obedient carpenter does, restoring the beauty that has always existed. In recognizing these truths my heart can laugh and cry in joy of the memories I've had with all of you! Though my journey here will not be finished until the end of May (2023) know of my continued service and love to you all! Please, do not hesitate to contact me for whatever needs you may have, that I can justly tend to. Never forget, thanks to Jesus we will always find one another in the Eucharist. Glory be to God!

Thank You!

Fable

William MacDonald

Once upon a time, in the deep, dark forest; there lived four bears: Brown Bear, Black Bear, Panda Bear and Polar Bear. One day, all four bears woke up to find flower sprouts in each of their individual gardens, yet none of them had planted any.

Brown Bear saw the flower sprout and thought, "This flower will suck all the water from my other plants, my carrots will die!" So, Brown Bear rooted out the sprout before it could bloom into a beautiful flower. After a while, though; Brown Bear regretted it; his carrots became overgrown and took over his garden. He couldn't even remove the carrots; and now there was no room for even the smallest dandelion.

Black Bear discovered her flower before it blossomed, but a little bit later than Brown Bear. Black Bear thought "Hmmm, I know this flower will take water from my other plants, but I know this flower will be beautiful; and I'll always have next season to grow potatoes." So Black Bear took out her potatoes and let the flower grow, and after it had blossomed into a beautiful flower, went back to growing her potatoes. She had a delightful flower and lots of potatoes the next season.

Panda Bear was very excited to see a flower seedling in his garden, for he had been trying to grow one for a while, but hadn't had any luck finding seeds. He spent all of his time caring for the growing flower; watering it, and preparing flower pots for it. However, just before it was time for it to bloom, the shoot wilted. Panda was very sad.

Polar Bear saw her flower, and like Brown Bear, was going to weed it out. Polar Bear was allergic to the flower's pollen. Just when she was about to pull it from the ground, she saw Panda Bear crying. Polar Bear knew that he had been trying to grow a flower, and that his had just wilted. She thought "Since Panda Bear wants a flower, but can't grow one, I'll grow my flower and give it to Panda Bear." So, Polar Bear raised her flower, and when it had bloomed, she gave it to Panda, and they were both happy. Panda thanked her very much and was overjoyed about finally having a flower of his own, and Polar Bear was happy that Panda was happy, and she could get back to her own garden.

You see, even if it's unplanned, you or someone else will enjoy the beauty of a flower; more than a successful garden of potatoes and carrots.

Most bears are very protective of their territories, their children (and according to this fable, most are protective of their gardens and flowers). We should all try to be like Black Bear, Panda Bear, and Polar Bear; and protect our flower seedlings. We should nurture them, make space in our garden (life) for them by taking carrots and potatoes out and planting them next season, after our flower has bloomed.

Anabella Chemelli

One fateful day a brushfire sparked in the depths of Africa. Herds of elephants became engulfed in smoke, filling their eyes and lungs until breathing became unbearable. Escape from this treacherous scene looked to be impossible. Among the group was a mother, almost to term with her baby. The survival of the other elephants was improbable, so the chances of the mother making it was not likely. As fate was almost certain, a feeling of love and protection overtook them. Realizing the future of the herd was in this baby's hands they did whatever they could to save this child. These elephants sacrificed helping themselves for another to have a future. This baby became a true reality, something so pure should never be second guessed. After all, life is a timeless privilege all living beings have the right to experience.

The inspiration behind this story is very personal, and comes from my own life and my mothers own experiences. She possesses qualities I strive to acquire. She is my biggest inspiration and who I mold my own morals after. The mother elephant represents her, my voice, protector, and first love. The baby is me, the one she chose to love. Much like fire, hate and selfishness can spiral out of control. Finding out about her pregnancy encased her with smoke, there seemed to be no escape from the explosion. The herd of elephants that helped the mother elephant represents everything my mother stands for. She stands for courage, kindness, temperance, and above all life. All of these virtues led my mom to prevail. She sacrificed everything she had for me, leaving her old life behind to give me a future. I hope women across the world can be as strong as her, and to have the courage to fight for what's right. I am forever grateful for my mother giving her baby girl a chance.

As the product of a saved abortion, I feel called to advocate for all unborn babies. My mother had the strength to save me, and by using her morals I can save more. From her I have learned that life is a beautiful reality worth sharing reality worth sharing.
