because your brother was dead and has come to life again;
he was lost and has been found.

Luke 15: 32

REFLECT:

First Reading:

Much to Samuel's surprise, the Lord instructed him to anoint the youngest of Jesse's sons, David, to be the next king of Israel.

When have you been surprised by God?

Second Reading:

Paul urges the Ephesians:

“Try to learn what is pleasing to the Lord.”

What do you think pleases the Lord?

Gospel:

Jesus' healing of the blind man created confusion, anger, and fear among some of the people witnessing this event. In a real sense, Jesus' healing exposed the blindness of others. How do we prevent ourselves from being blind to God's presence in this season of Lent? ©LPI

A FAMILY PERSPECTIVE

Failure to forgive blinds us to another's goodness. Lent provides an opportunity to wash away our blind-spots in the pool of forgiveness. Listen to Jesus in today's gospel: "Go wash and see."

The Judith Manno Stager Right to Life Fund, administered by the Elk County Community Foundation (ECCF), awarded a grant to Elk County Catholic High School for a recent essay contest. The students were asked to create a convincing piece of writing that portrayed life as a beautiful choice. In the end, three poems, a short biography, and two fables took the top prizes and are great examples of truth, beauty and goodness so needed in our current culture..

The Parable of the Cabbage Farmer: A Parable for Life

Grace Neubert

There once was a cabbage farmer who had been growing and cultivating his beloved cabbage patch for years — it was his pride and joy. Every day, the farmer would rise early to go out to the field to tend to his plants. Tenderly, he watered the cabbage and gave it fertilizer so that it would grow to become large and strong. Daily, he walked the rows inspecting each and every plant making note of which plants were struggling and which were flourishing. The farmer sought the best for his cabbage plants so that they would grow to nourish the people and communities that they would be delivered to at harvest time. Many other farmers in the area began to wonder about how the cabbage farmer had been so successful, as year after year he produced a bountiful harvest.

His neighbors noticed that throughout the rows of plants, the farmer planted herbs such as hyssop, peppermint, rosemary, sage, and thyme. “Why in the world,” they wondered, “would the farmer clutter his rows with all these other plants?” “Any successful farmer,” they thought, “would keep their crops separated, neat, and tidy.”

They also noticed that the farmer could often be found outside late into the night watching over the plants. Again they ridiculed the farmer, “He is so strange, why would he stay awake with plants?”

As the cabbage farmer continued to excel in his field year after year, the other less successful, jealous farmers finally humbled themselves and approached the cabbage farmer. They said, “Every year, you harvest almost 100 percent of the crops you plant in the spring, but most other farmers only harvest 80 percent of their crops. So, how do you do it?” they asked. The farmer replied with a question, “What do you do to protect your crops from the insects threatening to destroy them?” “We spray them in the spring, but it is inevitable that the bugs will destroy them. You know that,” they responded. The farmer nodded and asked another question, “How do you protect your plants from predators and animals seeking to destroy them?” The farmers responded, “We set traps, but the animals still surpass the traps and destroy our crops. You know that.” Again the farmer nodded. And he asked them one last question, “If you are all so willing to give up hope for your harvest every time you are faced with minor inconveniences like the bugs and animals attempting to destroy your crops, how do you expect that you will harvest the largest, highest quality of crops as I do?”

The other farmers, rattled by his questions, began to observe the cabbage farmer through a new lens. In the spring, like all the other farmers, he sprayed his crops to protect them from the bugs, but he also planted his herbs amongst the cabbage so that if the spray would fail, the bugs would be deterred from the cabbage plants by the aromatic herbs. He placed his traps strategically amongst the growing plants to remove predators from the field, but if the traps would fail, the farmer stayed awake and ready with his plants to save them from harm's way.

The cabbage farmer taught the other farmers a great lesson that day: that love, whether it be for one's crops or for another person means that one must sacrifice what is comfortable and convenient for the other.

So is life. Like the cabbage farmer, we all must come to appreciate and value the little plants— the babies, born and unborn— in our lives. We must cultivate and value our little plants, as much as the cabbage farmer did his, from the moment they entered the ground until they were grown and ready to make a difference for those that hungered. We must be like the cabbage farmer, then, and ask ourselves and others the challenging questions: Why is humanity allowing ignorant farmers to destroy 20 percent of our precious little plants? How can we as a society protect these little plants and be more proactive in protecting their lives from the moment of conception? What can society do to become more like the cabbage farmer?
